

Write a short story (about 200 -250 words) on topic: “A spine-chilling situation during online learning this year” including words: scissors, plushy, teacher, shine, shoelace, vomit.

Online classes are all fun and games until... There it is, one day when all secrets are being revealed, all bloodthirsty students are watching an exciting performance. The day of the dark, nightmarish moon...

This time finally comes, it's here and I can't wait to see what happens today...

I log on and enter the lesson. My camera is on but today it's not bothering me. The one who is going to be watched is HE. It's today that the truth about our devilishly handsome teacher is finally going to be exposed. He enters the lesson, I hold my breath. At first, I can't see much but as the time goes by the thick fog lifts and I can finally see the middle of His vault. Walls covered with blood, a massive black chandelier hanging from the ceiling, solid dark oak racks reaching the top of the vault, filled with mixtures and heavy books containing dark magical spells and finally a big plushy carpet soaked with vomit and blood. Suddenly, a masculine silhouette appears, the only thing that is clear enough to see are perfectly sharpened silver scissors placed in His hand. He comes closer to the camera, I lean towards only to see these maniacal sparks in His piercing green eyes. He lifts his free hand and one shining, glowing object appears. There it is. The shoelace of darkness... no one knows what it does but I guess we are about to find out... He takes the magical object with the most ghostly smile and cuts the shoelace with His scissors. Electricity in the whole world runs down. I can't stand the pressure and uncertainty of tomorrow so I simply pass out...
